In order to protect the integrity of Agency programs, an organization receiving funds through the BUILD Loan Program will be required to file a disclosure form at the time that an application is filed. The form will ask for information about activities which could be considered criminal in nature; activities which could show financial instability; or activities which have brought disciplinary action by a governmental regulatory agency.

This form should be filed by decision makers when the BUILD loan amount is $20,000 or more to the recipient. Decision makers would include senior management and/or board members. Non-profit organizations that already file accountings and other types of disclosure may submit a request for waiver upon a showing of comparable disclosure to another oversight agency.

Applications may be mailed or faxed to:
